HOMECOMING DAY ATTRACTS RECORD ALUMNI THRONGS

Alumni-Varsity Game and Punting Contest Held

Alumni of Saint Mary's College held their annual Homecoming Day fete last Sunday for the first time in the new college in Moraga Valley. One hundred and fifty members aeeended the first Alumni Mass in the new Chapel. One hundred of these received Holy Communion in a body, a condition which surpassed the fondest expectations of the Brothers. Such a demonstration as this by the members of the Alumni proves to all that Saint Mary's College his accomplished and is still accomplishing that for which it stands, namely, the production of Christian gentlemen.

Canty

Father Richard Curtis '13, of St. Francis de Sales Church in Oakland, celebrated Mass and Father Richard Hammond '15 preached the sermon. Father Hammond is from St. Charles Church in San Francisco. Father Curtis was assisted at Mass by J. Giles Miller '18, Frank Atwill '16, William Rodden '16 and Clarence Leal '28.

Carlos Sebastion '03 Soloist

The choir was headed by Carlos Sabastian '03, who was the soloist. Others who sang were Brother Agnon, Frank E. Michel '00, Thomas J. Horan '13 and Joseph Taaffe '96.

Immediately after Mass the Alumni were received at the Communion breakfast in the College dining hall by Frank E. Michel, chairman of the Alumni Committee of Sacramento. The Fathers Hammond and Curtis and Brother Lewis addressed the "grads" during breakfast.

Tour of Inspection

After breakfast the "old boys" were shown the high lights of the campus under the direction of the Brothers. All were enthusiastic in their praise of the buildings. The Chapel, dining halls, and lounge rooms received the most attention.

When the tour had been completed the members gathered in front of the Science Hall to have a group picture taken. This is a part of the annual Homecoming celebration and there was a great demand for pictures among the alumni.

Punting Contest

The punting contest for the Smith cup was held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. William "Butch" Simas won the contest and was presented with the beautiful trophy. A few minutes later the baseball game between the varsity and the alumni teams claimed the undivided interest of everybody and Brother Agnon's hopes were realized when the varsity took a drubbing from the alumni.

A. P. G. U. to Present Two One-Act Plays

Two plays by Lady Gregory will be presented under the auspices of the A. P. G. U. at Menlo Park Parish on March 16 by casts composed of men from Saint Mary's College. Harry Bertain will direct the actors with Professor Hagerty acting as advisor.

"The Workhorse Ward" and "The Rising of the Moon" are the productions which have been selected.

In the first, although the casts are tentative, H. Dobbins, Whelton and Stretch will take part. The latter play, "The Rising of the Moon," will have Locke, Clause, Dodds and Chiles in it, and the directors are scouting for a few more suitable men to complete the casts before starting rehearsals.

Surface on New Tennis Courts Being Prepared

Work Nearing Completion Under Supervision of J. P. Brennan

The work on the eight new tennis courts, which are being built on the north side of the dormitory group, is rapidly advancing and in a few weeks they will be completed and ready for play. They are to be built on a solid gravel and rock foundation with a heavily rolled surface of sand, smallcut gravel and a new kind of oil manufactured specially for the laying of tennis courts. This surface will roll as smooth as asphalt, it is just as durable and it will not crack or melt in any extremes of weather.

Brennan Builder

Mr. J. P. Brennan has the contract for the laying of the courts and the building of the steel wire fence which will surround them. The preliminary constructing and groding work will be completed within the week. Immediately following, if the good weather prevails, the surface will be laid, the fences erected and the nets put up. Plenty of room will be allowed on all sides of the eight courts so that nothing whatsoever will hinder the play.

Won't Be Long Now

It's time for the tennis players of the school to wipe last season's dust off their rackets, clean their white tennis shoes and locate their eye shades in anticipation of the completion of the courts.

Exiled Archbishop Consecrates Altar

In a most beautiful and impressive ceremony the Most Reverend Pedro Vera y Zuria, Archbishop of Puelala de Los Angeles in Mexico, consecrated the main altar of the chapel last Thursday morning, assisted by his secretary, Reverend Freyria. Two hours time, from eight till ten o'clock, was necessary to perform the sacred rite.

Following the consecration proper, Father Santos said the Mass.

Exiled

The Most Reverend Archbishop Zuria was rector of the Cathedral at Puelala de Los Angeles; but he and his assistant have suffered persecution in Mexico and are numbered among the exiles from that country. They are at present residing with the Salesian Fathers in San Francisco.

Volunteer Fire Dept. Organized by Students

Saint Mary's now boasts of a volunteer fire department run entirely by the students. This new department is so organized that in case of a fire, apparatus will be handled in an efficient manner.

Last Friday afternoon the firemen held their first drill under the direction of Fire Chief Harry Bertain, Assistant Fire Chief Stanley Kasper and the Junior Captains, Tom Jay and Art Freitas. The drill lasted less than three minutes, and in this short time three hoses were placed in full operation. When the force gains a little more experience the apparatus will be handled with perfect smoothness.

The department is made up of 18 students. Of these two are seniors, the chief and his assistant, two are juniors, the two captains, and the remaining fourteen chosen from the sophomore and freshman classes are regular firemen.

Meanwhile a truck is being built for the use of this department. The truck, a flashing red color, carries 200 feet of hose, two ladders, and four axes. The handling of the truck is placed under the supervision of Captain Art Freitas.

The volunteer fire department will meet twice a month in the future. During the course of the meetings instructions will be given by experienced and capable firemen from both the San Francisco and Oakland departments. These experienced men will conduct drills after the meeting, in which each volunteer will be given special helpful pointers concerning apparatus handling.

Noted Historian to Give Lecture

The history students of the lower division will again have the pleasure of listening to a lecture delivered by the eminent historian, Monsignor Joseph M. Gleason, if plans of Professor Louis LeFevre take the definite form which he hopes they will.

Monsignor Gleason is a recognized authority on history, having made it a life study, and was president of the American Historical Society. At present he is conducting the Lenten instructions at St. Francis de Sales Church in Oakland. Mr. LeFevre is negotiating with him in an effort to again bring him to the College.

The students remember the worth of his previous lecture before them last semester and anxiously await the time when they may listen to him again.

STUDENTS KEEP LENTEN SPIRIT

Opening with the "Mass of Exposition," the solemn devotion of the Forty Hours' Adoration continued in the College Chapel until Friday morning, at which time it was brought to a close at the Mass for the entire student body. Incidentally, besides being the day for the closing of the devotion, Friday was the First Friday of the month, and practically every student of Saint Mary's received Holy Communion at the Mass.

The ceremony of the Forty Hours is comparatively new. Unlike some of the other ceremonies of the Church, its history goes back only a few centuries. The central object of Catholic devotion is the adorable Sacrament of the Eucharist. The great principle of the Church's worship here on earth is to copy the homage paid to our Blessed Redeemer by the Church Triumphant in heaven. The Church, moreover, wishes that all her children shall have their share in this continuous homage. She has decreed that in each diocese throughout the world there shall be a cycle of adoration, when the Blessed Sacrament is exposed, in which all the faithful may participate, each in his own parish some time during the year. Therefore in each of the churches of this and every other diocese, at some designated time, occurs the impressive devotion known as the Forty Hours' Adoration.

Flagpole Erected by Phone Company Crew

Through the courtesy of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, the flagpole given to the College by the University of California was erected in time for the celebration of the annual Alumni Homecoming Day. A line crew and a truck equipped for pole raising were dispatched to the campus last week by E. R. Gates, district plant superintendent of the telephone company, to perform the job.

GAEL YEAR BOOK COVER SELECTED BY JUNIOR CLASS

Green Leather Fabric Choice of Staff; Annual to Be Ready in April

During the past week work on the Gael Annual has reached a climax. The advertising staff has started its final drive to fill the advertisement section and the circulation staff has begun the solicitation of subscriptions. Jack Fitzgerald, circulation manager, will start within a few days a class to class canvass during which first payments on the annual are to be made. The book is to be ready for distribution about the second week in April, thus giving all those who subscribe sufficient time to make the complete payment of $3.50.

Cover Selected

In keeping with the color generally associated with things Gaelic, a cover of green leatheroid fabric has been chosen. This ends one of the most discussed matters brought before this year's staff. After several months of investigation and consideration, the cover of this type has been chosen.

Proofs Returned

Proofs of much of the outside work have been returned and, according to Bernard Dobbins, editor, the results are very satisfactory, especially the engraving, with which he is particularly pleased. Proofs of the graduates and juniors are ready and the group pictures and team pictures will be ready next week.

Last Monday the photographic work was completed, all the group pictures of campus clubs and societies being taken on that day, as well as the few individual pictures which were left over from last semester.

Oakland Photographer Impressed by College

The beauty of Moraga Valley, and especially the Saint Mary's campus, is becoming so well known that it is growing into a Mecca for photographers.

The College was visited recently by Mr. Donovan, well known architect, and Mr. Cohen, Oakland photographer. The pictures taken, about forty in number, will be brought back East by Mr. Donovan to an architects' convention, and will serve as an example of California mission architecture.

Speaking of the College

In remarking about the campus, Mr. Cohen said: "When this place is better known, it will be a paradise for photographers due to the setting and landscape, and because of the singular light effects produced by the surrounding hills." Mr. Cohen's remark is as true as one made by a young lady who was visiting Saint Mary's College recently. Her words were: "This is one of those places you dream about, but never expect to see."

Sentimental Brakeman Halts Limited for Pussy Willows

With throttle wide open, the Saint Mary's Special, crack flyer of the Sacramento Northern, came steaming down the tracks, intent upon getting its 8:40 commuters to their destination on time. Every day for the past eight months Engineer Casey Jones Jr. and Brakeman "Hoiman" Schnitzel had brought their train into Calpeppy Junction right on the dot of 9 o'clock.

Last Tuesday was an exception, however, for just as the flyer was rounding the bend near Marvelous Moraga, the brakes were "slammed on" with such force that the passengers were sent sprawling into the aisles. The diner (?) was in an uproar with silverware and cutlery strewn from one end of the car to the other, eggs scrambled into the laps of the breakfasters, and coffee, syrup and catsup formed miniature lakes on the tables. Never before had the Special acted so queerly. Surely something terrible must have happened.

As quickly as it had stopped, the train started to move—backwards—and continued for a distance of a few yards until once again the brakes were applied in much the same manner as before. Many of the passengers were calm, while others were collected. Those whose curiosity was aroused, lost no time in investigation of the trouble. Imagine their embarrassment to find the brakeman leaning from the rear of the train picking pussywillows for Nell, the switchman's daughter, she of the golden hair and the silver voice. Once again a woman had come between man and his duty.

Meeting of Spanish Teachers Tomorrow

Saint Mary's Is Host to the Northern California Department

The program for the meeting of the Northern California Chapter of the American Association of Spanish Teachers, which will be held on the campus Saturday, March 2, has been completed according to Brother B. Edward, Dean of the Spanish department. This will be the first of several conventions, including that of the local division of the National Alumni Association, which will be held at Saint Mary's College.

"The Hispania," a journal published by the national association, is edited by Coester.

Program

The members of the chapter will be the guests of the College at luncheon, after which the following program will be presented:

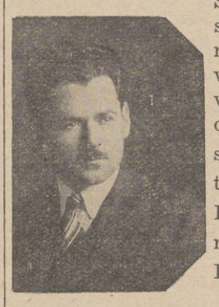
Professor Discusses Late Roman Question

"I am sure that the recent pact between the Papacy and the Italian country will result in much better relations of all countries of the world with the nation of Italy." Professor Silvermaster, instructor of Economics, said when asked to voice his opinion of the recent signing of the treaty by the Pope and Premier Mussolini of Italy.



Prof. Silvermaster

"For over fifty years the Popes and the Italian government have been trying to effect a reconciliation, but until the past month, neither of them could agree upon the temporal power of the Papacy. Finally, through the far-sightedness of the Premier of Italy, and through the earnest endeavor of Pope Jius XI, this compromise has been effected.

Of course the economic result of the agreement will not be of much consequence, because of the smallness of the new Papal state, however, in reference to the country of Italy as a whole and its relation with the Catholic population of the world, the situation has been improved to such a remarkable degree that we may now expect to see Italy take great strides in advancement in the economic world, industrially, financially and territorially."

To sum up the facts of this recent controversy, we first see trouble arising between the old Papal states and the far-famed Garibaldi in 1870. Until this time Italy had not had a centralized government, and it was the aim of Garibaldi and his company of "Red Shirts" to form one. He had conquered all of Italy with the excep-

CARDS TRIUMPH IN SECOND GAME OF LEAGUE SERIES

1928 Champions Now Even with Stanford in Baseball

The Saint Mary's Varsity baseball team lost its first intercollegiate game of the season to Stanford, Wednesday at Palo Alto, by the score of 7 to 4. Earlier in the season the Gaels won from the Cards with ease, and this week's defeat came as a surprise to the Varsity followers.

Gaels Start Early

Saint Mary's scored two runs in the first inning to start off the game. This early lead was a result of a pair of triples from the bats of Captain Rooney and Silva. The third frame was even up, with both the Cards and Gaels scoring a run apiece.

Cards Rally

The Saints stuck to their two-run lead up until the sixth inning. At this point Stanford opened up and banged in three runs to take the lead. In the eighth this was increased with three more tallies.

Smalling Checks Gaels

Saint Mary's started a determined rally in the ninth inning after two men had been put away. This spoiled a great pinch hit by Ackerman, who got around to third with a deep hit to center, batting for Smith. Silva was given a walk, Captain Rooney scored Ackerman with a single, and everything was set for a last-minute victory. The gods were not inclined to be favorable, however, and Seghetti ended the game with a grounder to third.

Captain Rooney and Silva were the big guns in a game that should have been won, with three hits apiece. Conlan started on the mound, but gave way to Hamilton in the sixth inning. Both were rather wild, and this fact, coupled with poor handling of bunts, cost Saint Mary's the game.

Taylor, Simkins and Smalling did the pitching for Stanford. Simkins, after relieving Taylor in the third,

Famous Notre Dame Coach Visits Coast

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach and originator of the famous "Notre Dame shift," arrived in San Francisco Thursday, February 21, at 9 o'clock in the morning, and was greeted by "Slip" Madigan, Adam Walsh, "Nibs" Price and "Pop" Warner.

Mr. Rockne is making a tour of the United States for the interest of the Studebaker Corporation of America. He is addressing their sales forces throughout the country on the psychology of selling, and is showing the relationship between coaching and developing good football teams, and manufacturing and selling good automobiles.

In San Francisco Thursday, Mr. Rockne addressed the Studebaker dealers, salesmen, and chief mechanics of Northern California. "Slip" said: "I think that it is the best talk that I ever heard him give. It was forceful and typically humorous of Rockne too." After the luncheon Steve Bancroft, California football star, and "Slip" Madigan opposed Adam Walsh and Mr. Rockne in a game of handball on the Olympic Club courts. As the last event of the day, Percey Locey was the host of the group of football authorities, and Mr. Rockne addressed the Olympic Club football team. At 8 o'clock in the evening, Mr. Rockne was escorted to Third and Townsend, and he boarded the "Lark" for Los Angeles. From Los Angeles he will entrain for Boston, and back to Salt Lake City, where he will complete his tour.

It was the intention of Mr. Rockne to make a visit to the new Saint Mary's campus on this trip, but due to appointments in other parts of the United States his time was too limited.

ALUMNI

The first alumni to arrive for Homecoming Day were Clarence Leal and William Keller, both members of the class of 1928. Leal and Keller arrived Saturday night and were accorded sleeping accommodations by Brother Thomas in one of the dorms. Leal is now an instructor at Saint Mary's College High School, while Keller is doing graduate work in the English department at Stanford University.

Carlos Sebastian '03 was the first alumnus to arrive on Sunday morning. Carlos came over early to practice for his vocal solo which was sung at the communion mass. Carlos is a former opera singer and is now an instructor in the Arrillaga Musical College in San Francisco, which is owned by Vincente Arrillaga '94.

The servers at the mass were Frank Atwill '16 of Oakland, William Rodden '16 of San Francisco, J. Giles Miller '18 of San Francisco, and Clarence Leal '28.

Attorney Thomas J. Horan '13 arrived early with his Vallejo delegation. Included in the delegation were Charles McInnis '15, Eugene P. Boyle '23 and Daniel Collins '28. Horan was the first president of the Vallejo Unit of the alumni. He is also a past vice-president of the general Alumni Association as well as being a past Grand Knight of Vallejo Council of the Knights of Columbus. At the Homecoming dinner in the evening, Horan was one of the principal speakers.

John J. Brush '17, of St. Helena, was another of the out-of-town delegation who arrived early in the morning for the annual communion. Brush is a past president of the Northbay unit of the alumni. He is with the Bank of Italy at St. Helena.

Frank E. Michel '00 and Clifford Russell '11, both of Sacramento, also arrived at the new college in time for the annual communion. Michel was chairman of the communion committee and presided as chairman at the program held at the communion breakfast. He is a director of the general Alumni Association and is a past state deputy of the California jurisdiction of the Knights of Columbus. Russell is president of the Sacramento unit of the alumni and is also Grand Knight of Sacramento Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Students Form Choral Society

Through the efforts of Brother Edward the choir has been augmented into symphonic proportions. Several of the old choristers from the famous organization that so inspired the congregations at Old Saint Mary's have joined the ranks of the young Brothers' choir.

With only one rehearsal, the choir went through the Mass in honor of St. John Baptist de La Salle perfectly, at the opening of the Forty Hours.

There is room for several more singers, especially for some who could be present for Mass on Sunday. Those who feel they can qualify should see Brother Edward and find out the time for practice.

PAPAL STATES

tion of the Papal States, which were protected by troops from France and he did not feel that he could cope with this over-powering nation. Due to a union with Bismarck and the latter's overthrowing of France, Garibaldi was able to take Rome in spite of the futile resistance of the Pope when the French forces were withdrawn. Garibaldi's capital was set up in Rome and all of the territory governed by the Pope seized.

Since that time, all of the kings and premiers of Italy as well as the succession of Popes have endeavored to overcome the difficulty. Nevertheless, the temporal power of the Pope was not clearly defined or admitted until the recent settlement.

Pope Pius XI realized that the Papacy should not have too much temporal power, so he would not accept any territory where he would have to govern subjects and as a consequence he now possesses the grounds upon which the Vatican is now placed, and a short strip of land leading to a railroad station. Also, he was given a large villa on the seashore to which he may retire during the oppressively hot days during the summer. As a monetary recompense a settlement of a billion lire was reached. (This represents some $57,000,000 in American money.)

A. P. G. U. PLANS FOR INITIATION

The last meeting of the A. P. G. U. was addressed by their moderator, Brother Henry. The moderator complimented the members for having kept alive the activities of the society through the period of transition from the old college, during which time most societies had been practically dormant. He also outlined possibilities of dramatics in the future, especially after the gymnasium would be constructed. In closing, Brother Henry pledged his continued effort and cooperation.

The date for the next initiation was set for the evening of March 14. The date had to be postponed because of conflict with the examinations.

Lack of time prevented all business from being completed, so a special meeting will be called in the near future. Members will do well to watch the bulletin boards for announcement.

100% TALKIE AT GRAND LAKE

The Grand Lake Theatre presents its first 100 per cent talking picture beginning today. "The Doctor's Secret" is based upon Sir James Barrie's "Half an Hour." It reveals a beautiful young wife's infatuation for another man and the startling development that threatens her with scandal.

The second unit of Fanchon and Marco's "Hollywood Frolics" comes to the stage this week. Milt Franklyn and his marvelous band will also play their way into your hearts. A talking comedy and Fox Talking News complete the Grand Lake Theatre's all-talking performance.

High School Students Recently Visit Campus

The fourth year students of St. Elizabeth's High School of Fruitvale, accompanied by five Sisters of St. Dominic including Sister Perpetua, the principal, were visitors on the campus Friday, February 22.

The party arrived on the campus at 1:30 o'clock, coming on the Saint Mary's bus, and were shown about the campus.

Carmelites Join

Two Carmelites of the College joined the visitors, as Sister Susana, one of the Sisters in the St. Elizabeth party was of Mexican descent, and was glad, "tan la lengua que habla Dios con sus Angelitos."

Students Watch Ball Game

After visiting the different buildings and points of interest about the campus, the students watched a baseball game between the Saint Mary's varsity and the Ambrose Tailors, which was played on the College diamond.

Benediction at 6:30

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was held in the Chapel at 6:30 in the evening. Over 200 members of the Alumni attended this. Many of the members were accompanied by their wives.

Fitzgerald Is Toastmaster

At 7:00 a banquet was served to the "grads" in the dining hall. More than two hundred were present and joviality was the keynote of the gathering. Dick Fitzgerald of San Francisco, who is the president of the Saint Mary's Alumni Association, was the toastmaster. Short talks were given by David Wynne '25, Thomas J. Horan '13 and Brother Agnon.

ALUMNI BASEBALL TEAM DEFEATS VARSITY, 7-6, IN HOMECOMING GAME

Famous Big Leaguers Return to Alma Mater and Show Varsity Men Tricks of the Game; Walter Mails, "Sparky" Farrell and "Ink" Bill Star

In a game witnessed by several thousand Saint Mary's Alumni and their families, the Phoenix bowed to their former comrades after a hard fought contest. The final score was 7-6, and the game was as close as the score indicates. The "old grads" jumped into a three-run lead in the third and at the end of the fourth were leading, 5-0. From here on the Saints tightened up and all but won the ball game.

Poor coaching at third base kept the Gaels out of at least a tie contest in the regulation nine innings when Stennett's long poke into center field went for a three-bagger instead of a homer. Mack had the throw beaten, but was not in a position to see the ball as he received no help from the base coach and pulled up at third. Stennett was left on the bag, and a run was lost to the Phoenix.

Hamilton Starts

Hamilton started on the mound and breezed through the first two innings. In the third things began to happen, the Alumni getting to him for three hits and as many runs. In the fourth they tallied twice on two hits and Ham gave way to Ken Dana, who

BEARS AND GAELS MEET SATURDAY

Tomorrow the Phoenix will go into action against the Californians in the first of a three game series. Since baseball relations were first established between these institutions California has won but three ball games. In 1925, playing in the Memorial Stadium, a homer with the bases loaded gave the Bears a 5-3 victory. This four-ply drive by Frank (Baboon) Thatcher was a fly into the west bleachers of the stadium which in a regulation field would have been an easy out.

Last year the Saints took the series by a 2-1 count, California winning the second game.

The game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

CHAMPION PUNTER

William "Butch" Simas

When Butch Simas won the Jim Smith Punting Trophy last Sunday it came as no surprise to those familiar with his past record. One of the finest athletes ever to enter Saint Mary's came in the person of Simas. The record he made in his sophomore year compares favorably with those of the greatest athletes in the athletic history of the Coast. All that combines to produce a great athlete is to be found in Simas.

Three Letter Man

In his first year of varsity competition he became a three-letter man, getting a sweater for football, basketball and baseball. He first came into prominence in the fall of 1927, when he starred in a halfback position on the Saint Mary's varsity that defeated Stanford 16-0. During that season he established his reputation as a gridder of unusual ability.

Basketball

Still a sophomore, the following spring he held down a regular forward position on the basketball team. and with Eddie Tazer became one of the shooting aces of the league. His great playing brought forth favorable comment from all quarters. Simas is still eligible for two more years of collegiate basketbagll.

After the cage season was over, Simas turned his attention to the diamond, where he alternated behind the bat with Toots Kasper. This season he is playing a type of ball that is far superior to that usually found in college leagues. There is certainly a great future for him in this line if he should continue to follow baseball as a profession.

Played for Olympic Club

Butch withdrew from college last fall and starred for the Olympic Club. Here he played with such men as Kaer, Marcus and Pat Wilson, and it is to his credit that in such fast company he landed the regular quarterback berth. Simas was in a peculiar predicament last fall when he played against his Alma Mater.

Coached Frosh Cagers

Returning to school this spring he did not turn out for basketball, taking over the coaching reins of the frosh cage team and guiding it through a successful season instead. In his direction of the frosh he displayed judgment that would have become coaches far more experienced.

Butch will be out for the quarterback position this fall.

GAELS LOST TWO

The Gaels dropped two practice games last week, yielding a close 2-1 decision to the Jeffersons and losing 4-0 to the Valva Hardware nine. In the lineup of the Hardware team were to be found LeRoy Anton and Jimmy Reese, first and second baseman respectively; many other professionals of note were also on the Hardware squad.

Frosh Captains Athens Club Swimming Team

The freshman class may take a new lease on athletic life. One of its members has made good. The election of Crawford Christie '32 to the captaincy of the Athens Club swimming team should further interest in the aquatic sport at Saint Mary's.

For three years Christie has been a member of this team, and his name is well known in the swimming world.

SAINT MARY'S CONQUERS SANTA CLARA IN SURPRISING DISPLAY OF POWER

New Defense and Offense Cross Up Conquerors of Gray Fog and California; Tazer, Ebding and Driscoll Gael Stars

Emerging victorious in the greatest upset of the current cage season, Captain Eddie Tazer led the Gael squad to a 25 to 24 score in the second game of the series at Kezar Pavilion last Tuesday night. The Galloping Gaels led early in the game and were only tied a few minutes before the half time with a 12 to 12 score. Jack Gough, high point man for the Broncos' squad last game, shared honors with Captain Tazer.

Coach "Dutch" Conlan and his boys worked hard on new plays last week, and they proved to be the upset of the Santa Clara's well timed plays. The brilliant work of "Heinie" Driscoll and "Toby" Hunt took the ball from the backboard, passed and ran to enable perfect team work for the squad.

Tie Score at Half Time

With but a few minutes to end the half Jack Gough started his favorite trick; putting the ball through the hoop. He put the ball through twice in a row to even the score just as the whistle blew. After the opening of the second half Roger Sears sank the ball and put the Saints into the lead again.

Last year Santa Clara's rooters were leaving the stands satisfied that the game would end in their favor, but stopped when the Saint comeback won the game, and evened the series up. This year the game was the same, but much closer in scoring, and no one left until the final whistle.

Final Moments Exiting

Only forty-five seconds remained to be played when Tim Connolly, Bronco star center, was given a free throw that would have tied the score. Tim has been second high point man at Santa Clara all season, and many fans thought that he was sure to ring the hoop and tie the score, but the unexpected happened again. He missed. The strain told on him and when the ball hit the backboard and bounced into the waiting arms of "Toby" Hunt the game was over for Santa Clara.

Roger Sears, Heinie Driscoll, Toby Hunt, Harry Ebding, and Bob Patterson showed that "Dutch" Conlan had drilled them on scoring plays during the week. They worked perfectly on defense and offense.

Captain Tazer High Pointer

A fiitting tribute should be given to Eddie Tazer: his brilliant comeback meant defeat for the Santa Clara squad. His ten points do not indicate how much he wos doing on the floor besides shooting buckets.

The final and deciding game should see Captain Eddie Tazer shooting and passing the ball to Ebding, Sears, Hunt and Driscoll with perfect team work.

Deciding Game Next Week

The crucial game of the series will be played at Kezar Pavilion next Tuesday night, March 5. For this game the entire student body should

PUNTING TROPHY WON BY JUNIOR

The annual Jim Smith Punting Trophy was awarded for the second time last Sunday as part of the ceremony for the Annual Homecoming Day. William (Butch) Simas proved himself the king pin of Saint Mary's punters and walked off with the trophy, averaging 45 yards in three punts.

Kasper, fullback on the grid squad and catcher for the ball team, placed second with an average of 42 yards. Steve Porcella took third place, averaging 39 yards per boot.

Stennett Won Last Year

This contest was held last year at the Old Brick Pile for the first time, when Stud Stennett, then a freshman, won the trophy. Stennett did not compete for the cup this year. This feature is now an annual event, the object of which is to stimulate interest at Saint Mary's in the art of punting.

Four of the first five competitors are well known upon the gridiron. Steve Porcella, who finished third, has never turned out for the grid squad, He was one of the star backs in the grid battle staged between the upper classmen last semester.

Ackerman Fourth

George Ackerman, regular tackle, and left fielder for the ball team, placed fourth. Ackerman has often been seen in the role of punter, dropping out of the line to kick. George averaged 37 yards.

Following are the statistics of the first five:

Trial (yards)—	1	2	3	Av.
Simas	42	45	49	45
Kasper	42	50	34	42
Porcella	40	39	38	39

New Sports Heads to Assume Duties

Members of the senior class that had places on the sports staff of The Collegian have been ably replaced by lower division students, upon whom will fall the responsibility of editing this department for the ensuing year. The idea was inaugurated in order that the publication of the paper will fall into the hands of experienced men, and will become a precedent.

Earle N. Long of the sophomore class has been moved up from the assistant editorship to that of editor of the sports department, succeeding Edward Massa, of the class of '29. To succeed Ralph Heinze, who will also graduate, Jack Hamilton, another sophomore, was chosen to fulfill the duties of the assistant sports editor.

DIAMOND DUST

By Jack Hamilton

Captain Joe Rooney has been hitting into hard luck lately. Wallops that in the average diamond would go for extra bases are being snared by the opposing outfielders. This is the penalty you pay for having an outfield without a fence around it.

Ink Bill, nonchalant upper classman who finished his quota of collegiate competition when he played center field for the Phoenix last year, held down third base for the alumni. His hitting was the feature of the game, gathering four bingles out of five times at bat.

Interested spectators at the alumni game were Bob Stevenson, captain and first baseman of the Bear nine, Walter Wyatt and Jacobson, first string catcher and pitcher respectively for California. Come again—Californians are always welcome.

Ducky Grant played first base for the grads. He has been working at a San Francisco Stock Exchange after completing a successful season of professional football. Ducky correlates his football with baseball. He clipped Jackie Smith out of a pretty play at third base during the game. This seemed a little out of place in a game between friends.

"The Great Walter" Mails came up from the San Francisco Seals' training camp at Monterey to chuck four innings for the alumni. As usual, "The Great Walter" furnished the fans with plenty of fun and struck out twice before giving way to Kardoza.

Saints Score

The Saints started to get back some of the runs in the fourth and crept steadily up on the Alumni. Two runs in the eighth put them within striking distance of the game. In the ninth the varsity was able to collect only one run, Stennett dying on third when Ragus struck out.

Free Run

In the sixth, in order to let the Alumni know that the game was all in fun, the Gaels presented the "old grads" with a run without the aid of a hit. A combination of errors was responsible for this and gave the Alumni the deciding run of the contest.

The Gaels out-hit the Alumni 14 to 10, but the five-run lead they gained off Hamilton and the present in the sixth proved too much for the Phoenix to overcome.

Brother Agnon Tosses

The honorary battery for the game was Brother Agnon and Dr. Charles M. McGettigan. Brother Agnon amazed the fans with his pitching form and hurled the first ball. He then retired to the side lines. Dr. Mcgettigan made a sensational catch.

STANFORD LOSES TO GAEL VARSITY BASEBALL TEAM

The Saint Mary's baseball nine opened its intercollegiate schedule last Wednesday with a smashing victory over Stanford's Redshirts. When the dust of battle had settled the score board read: Stanford 3, Saint Mary's 9. The issue was never in doubt, and from the fourth inning on the Gaels had the game on ice.

Hard Hitting

The Phoenix walloped the horsehide to a fare-ye-well, driving it to every corner of the lot. In all they gathered fourteen bingles off the combined efforts of Lewis, Smalling and Simkins. These boys are far better football players than they are pitchers. The Saints didn't seem to realize who they were, and waded right into the fray without any respect for their gridiron prowess.

"Such popularity must be deserved!"

To an outsider, the time and trouble taken to produce a Chesterfield might seem as unnecessary as the sabre-scars so proudly worn by students of pre-war Heidelberg. But popularity is much the same the world over — you don't get it for nothing.

But any short-cuts in the time it takes to cure and mellow the Chesterfield tobaccos, or one step the less in blending and balancing them — would end up in something that wasn't Chesterfield. And you wouldn't like that.

So we'll stick to our old system—getting the right tobaccos, blending them the Chesterfield way, never sacrificing character, body, flavor to mere mildness.

We want to keep our popularity, now that we've earned it — and we know no better way than to keep on earning it!

It has been announced that the Academia Italiana which was founded by Mussolini two years ago, the purpose of which is to embody the elite of Italian culture and to act as a powerful organ of research and intellectual co-operation, is to be inaugurated on October 27, 1929. In the beginning, it will consist of sixty members — twenty more than the forty "immortale" of the French Academy —and will have the right to representation in Parliament. Thirty members will be appointed by the government this March and after the Academy has been originated these thirty will elect the others.

(Houghton-Mifflin Co., $2.50.) A series of extracts from the diary of a lady-in-waiting at the imperial court of Japan in 1000 A.D. It will enhance Lady Muraski's reputation by revealing in the pages of one of her contemporaries the raw material from which she wrought her masterpiece.

"The unique civilization portrayed in the "Tale of Genji" and "The Pillow Book of Sei-Shonagon," as Mr. Whalley sets forth, corresponds to a unique record of isolation and tranquility. It was a purely esthetic and, above all, a literary civilization. Never, among people of exquisite cultivation and lively intelligence, have purely intellectual pursuits played so small a part."

It was, if truth be told, a vacuous, butterfly existence, of excessive formalitsm in literature and of corresponding formalism in life, when good handwriting was the test, not only of a good education but of a good character, when there was no sense of the problem of evil to drive the anguished soul on to achievement, when even gallantry was a matter of routine, and when the ladies of the Empress Saadaki's suite were thrown into a flurry by thunderstorms, cuckoos, nuns and beggars, and the sewing of a gown the wrong way, and in which the greatest event was being found asleep by the emperor and empress. Quaint children all, playing in a doll's house, a card castle that collapsed at the first hint of the wars against the Fujiwara dominance a century later.

Sei-Shonagon was the daughter of a noble. Born in 966 or thereabout, at the age of 25 she came to court, where she remained until the death of the empress, in childbirth, ten years later. She had a tart tongue, an aptness in literary allusion, and a pathetic desire to be loved, which made here alternately feared and ridiculed. Murasaki who followed her, had little use for Sei-Shonagon's self conceit, But she had a lot of common sense and, in her diary, reveals herself and the life about her unsparingly ."She gives back in her pages," remarks her translator, "with apparently as little effort of her own as a gong that sounds when it is struck, the whole warmth and glitter of the life that surrounded her."

He has here assembled a few of the more interesting passages of her voluminous diary, miscellaneous in character and haphazard in order. They show that Sei-Shonagon had little of the high romantic strain which affected Lady Murasaki's style, at times a little disastrously, and they abound in good feminine sense. Her comments are direct, forceful and sound, as a quotation or two must suffice to show:

"There is nothing in the whole world so painful as feeling that one is not liked. It always seems to me that people who hate me must be suffering from some strange form of insanity."

"Really, if a man finds the door open, the best thing he can do is to walk in."

Among the "Things that make one happy," Shonagon lists foremost, "Getting hold of a lot of stories, none of which one has read before." The English reading world owes to Mr. Waley a lot of this type of happiness. "The Pillow Book of Sei-Shonagon" is a case in point.

One more relic of the literary past has been salvaged. The elm under which Byron rested in Harrow parish churchyard and the Peachey tomb on which he sat have been the shrine of pilgrims from many years. Writing in 1822 to John Murray, Byron says, "There is a spot in the churchyard looking towards Windsor and a tomb under a large tree where I used to sit for hours when a boy." The tomb suffered at the hands of relic hunters, who chipped pieces away, and it is not caged in. The elm has undergone various vicissitudes. It was blown down in a gale, leaving about six feet of hollow trunk. Then in 1928 it was mischievously burned by boys who made a fire in its center, but the stump was saved. The Rev. F. Wayland Joyce, who was the Vicar of Harrow, himself grubbed up the stump and the intention was to fashion it into a chair back. It was, however, so worm-eaten that this was impossible, and the remains are now to be preserved in a specially made case in the Vaughan Library at Harrow School. Thus all the relic-seekers will be disappointed as far as this object of veneration is concerned.

OUTLOOKS & INSIGHTS

EYES FRONT!

At times we old stagers have been lured into speaking of college examinations as necessary evils. Perhaps that was because examinations, to most instructors, and certainly to all active-minded instructors, involve a degree of drudgery, and all drudgery is a distasteful thing; and because we have opined that since examinations are usual they cannot be dispensed with.

In sober fact, however, examinations are not strictly necessary, and examinations need not be evil things. But they are eminently useful, especitlly when properly prepared, and prepared for, and rightly considered, they constitute a genuine educational procedure. If we take education to mean, among other things, a preparation for life, we must see that college examinations can be educational; for life, when you come to think of it, is one long series of tests, often grilling and heartless in the extreme.

Professional life, business life, religious life and social life are not made up of graceful gestures and glittering generalities. Try hunting a job and see! Life does not measure us on our own evaluation or in accordance with our own standards. It asks, "What do you know?" and "What can you do?" And when we do slipshod work or assume a knowledge that we do not possess, life has a most ungentlemanly way of rapping us sharply over the knuckles.

Education is at present our life and our business, and there is no valid reason why education, despite what the newspaper jokesmiths say about college, should not conform to the general laws of life and to the customary procedures of business. If you must face examinations when you try out for a football team, when you want to be a dentist, when you aspire to enter a wholesale firm, even when you contemplate getting married, why should you seek to dispense with examinations when your object is the bachelor's degree?

FACT AND FANCY.

All the way from England comes a query from a novel-reading correspondent: "How is it that a tale which I know to be only a concoction will captivate me for hours, and one which I know to be literally true will make me yawn?"

A good problem that for freshman "Art of Study" men to wriggle their shapely eyebrows over.

Several explanations occur, but I think the basic reflection has to do with the difference between truth and fact. This looks ridiculous at first, but really many things that are true are not facts, and many things that are facts are not true. When we speak of a "true fact" we are not necessarily guilty of tautology.

The fictional tale which arouses and maintains our interest is not factual, but it is true. It is not factual, because its characters, its events and its recorded conversations have no objective reality; it is true, because its characters act like human beings, its events are such as would come to pass according to the inevitable logic of life, and its conversations have the glint and glow of human sympathy, humor, passion and experience.

The so-called true story, on the other hand, may not be true at all, save in the utterly trivial circumstance that it actually happened. It is a fact, but most facts are not vital, significant, important. It is a fact that this morning I put on my right shoe first, that I scraped my face with a bit of steel, that I said "Good morning!" to our devastating janitor. Those things are bits of the roughage of life, not of its essential oils, its potent distillations. They are things that mean so little as to amount to practically nothing, and if some novelist were to make a story out of them he would promptly lose his reputation.

Much of life—in some cases almost all of life—is composed of just such petty, commonplace, factual things; but even the meanest of us has a hunger for truth, and when that hunger is not gratified in the realm of fact, we chew "the cud of sweet and bitter fancy."

BOOKS

Ralph Waldo Emerson: A Study of the Poet as Seer. Robert M. Gay. Garden Sity, New York. Doran, 1928.

Samuel Johnson said somewhere that biography is a study of a man's mind: for that is his noblest possession. Many men, however, do not have an interesting mental life, so that when we know all the external facts connevted with their lives we literally know all about them. Emerson was not of this type. If any man lived in a realm of ideas, whose biography is chiefly a study of mental growth, that man was Emerson.

Robert M. Gay has written a valuable book. Not only is it a rather intensive study of Emerson's ideas, but it illumines as well the century in which he wrote, its important intellectual movements and its great men. Gay discusses at some length Emerson's great essays; and his estimate of the man, while enthusiastic, is also sober.

The author makes extensive use of Emerson's journal to show the reader the early conception and gradual growth of his great principles.

It is a fact that the germ of his principles of self reliance and compensation can be traced back to entries made during his nineteenth year when he was at Harvard. After one has finished the biography one has read considerable of Emerson, for he is very frequently quoted; and one retains a memory of giddy soarings in a solar system of thought. An unsubstantial voyage indeed.

The Theatre

GOLF COMEDY SCORES

Frank Craven is shooting par for three acts at the Columbia Theatre before a capacity gallery of fans. His latest golf comedy and starring vehicle, "The Nineteenth Hole," is a fitting successor to his memorable play, "The First Year."

Undoubtedly this play by Mr. Craven is the funniest comedy seen here in a long time. It possesses an abundance of genuine humor that keeps the audience laughing for more than two hours. It is a clever episode on the national pastime of business men—golf, and yet not disparaging to that popular sport.

The play revolves around Vernon Steele, a professor and lecturer, who hires a cottage at the Harmony Golf Club for the summer. Vernon is taken up with his work and claims a great disinterest in golf. Mr. Gill, one of the club members, invites Vernon to visit the links. Innocently, Vernon picks up a golf club on the practice tee and is bitten by the "golf bug." In a fit of enthusiasm, he joins the club, and thereafter his lectures take second place, being replaced by the study of golf.

In a certain match, including Colonel Hammer, the official of the club and chairman of every committee, Vernon loses $100 unwittingly. Believing the Colonel altered the score and knowing his wife will not advance the money, Vernon refuses to pay. A feud results and a settlement is agreed upon in the form of a match—loser pays double and resigns from the club. On the nineteenth hole, the Colonel breaks the tie through the fairness of Vernon, and Chase pays the penalty.

The Colonel's wife compels him to call off the agreement. Vernon realizes his life's ambition, winning a cup for low net, and his wife succumbs, a victim to the fatal malady—golf.

Frank Craven, in the role of Vernon Chase, gives a perfect as well as hilarious performance. His first experience with a golf club and the locker room episode were exceptionally good.

Dorothy Blackburn, as Mrs. Chase, the prim and proper wife of Vernon, handled her role in a very capable manner. Homer Barton, playing Mr. Gill, the corpulent, hand-shaking good fellow found on any ilnks, was typical of the character and a master of facial expression.

Robert Wayne, the blustering Colonel Hammer, carried the part well. Rea Martin was pleasing as Nedda Everett, and the remainder of the company gave evidence of a carefully chosen cast.

The great play of comedy in the first act tends to slow up the remaining acts which are devoted to plot; but neevrtheless these acts possess more than enough of laughs.

If you enjoy the acme of wholesome, original comedy, don't miss "The Nineteenth Hole."

Cross-Country Race Next Month

St. Patrick's Day, March 17, will mary the first Saint Mary's "Cross Country" race, which will be an annual event under the sponsorship of "Slip" Madigan.

The course will start at the athletic field, down across the bridge, a short distance down the county road, around the edge of Lake La Salle, up the creek to Justin Grove, and back to the athletic field, where it will end after a few laps around the field.

This is a distance of about two and a half miles, and only sixteen days remain between now and the day of the race, so every man who has intentions of running should take advantage of the remaining short time, so there will be a number of creditable showings made. There will be individual and class honors and prizes awarded, so there are two incentives to expend your greatest efforts in preparation for the race.

To date "Vic" Ponti is a heavy favorite to cop lrst place, as he placed twelfth out of the forty entrants in the "cross city" race sponsored by the Vallejo Herald at Vallejo, Washington's birthday. "Vic" had made but three days preparation for this run, so with over three weeks training for the next race, he should be in pretty good condition. Ponti craves competition, so let's give him plenty.

Dante Club to Adopt Constitution Soon

The growing interest in Italian at Saint Mary's has induced Professor Garaventa to lend his help to the formation of an Italian Club.

The newly formed organization, which already boasts of sixteen members, will be known as the Dante Club, in honor of t ehgreatest of Italian poets. A constitution is being drawn up by Professor Garaventa, which will be presented to the students for their approval. The first meeting of the Dante Club will be called by President Reeves, who was appointed to that capacity for the interest he has shown in the promotion of Italian at Saint Mary's.

Purpose of Club

"The purpose of the club," says Garaventa, "will not be to promote social affairs, but to familiarize its members with Italian literature, culture and art." It is not necessary for a student to take Italian in order to join; anyone will be welcome if interested in any of the above subjects.

Frosh Meet Cubs on California Field

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at Hilgard Field, the Saint Mary's diamond yearlings will make their debut in collegiate baseball. They have had over a week's rest since their first two games in which they displayed wonderful class. Nevertheless, Coach Schweintzer has been putting them through regular practices.

The starting lineup has not yet been announced, but with three or more men for each position, an exceptionally strong battery staff, and four or five sluggers of varsity strength, this year's frosh is expected to clean up on California tomorrow, and go through the rest of the season undefeated.

George Good '27 will be seen on the campus Tuesday, representing Herman's Smart Shop in their spring display at Saint Mary's.

One place where a gentleman won't give his seat to a lady is at the New York Stock Exchange. The price of a seat is now $410,000.

Business Manager Sick; at Hospital

Carl Featherstone, business manager of The Collegian, is at present recovering from an attack of appendicitis in a San Francisco hospital. Carl was taken to the hospital and operated upon last week and according to the latest reports is rapidly recuperating. It is expected that he will be back within another week and will soon be able to resume his duties in taking care of the business end of the publication of The Collegian.

POLITICS

Plans are under way to supplant the new and untried representative council system of student body government by the organization of a so-called "judiciary council." This remarkable group proposes to represent the organizations of the campus and the various factions of the school as a unit to control student affairs. Everyone is to get equal representation according to the plan, despite the fact that every organization on the campus is composed almost solely of resident students. By what stretch of the imagination can a controlling group based on society membership be regarded as representative? And what kind of sportsmanship is it that takes advantage of the difficulties of arranging an entirely new constitution as authorized by the associated students in regular meeting, to railroad a plan designed to serve the ends of campus politicians?

All agree that the present form of government is obsolete; the call for a new form of government is unanimous. However, just as plans are being completed for the installation of a government which the association has expressed itself as being favorable to, someone steps in, whether consciously or not, and delays the forming of a strong student government, to the complete satisfaction of super-uninterested onlookers.

Give the regularly authorized committee a fair chance to complete its plans; if they are not satisfactory consider a new plan, but not until they have been proven so.

THIS BUSINESS OF COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Coach Rockne of the University of Notre Dame recently expressed his opinion as a football coach of a condition in college athletics that is succeeding gradually in degrading intercollegiate sports to the level of professionalism. That condition is the existence of athletic "scholarships"—in other words, the outright purchase of a man's athletic ability.

Rockne condemned this practice in forceful terms. He is a great sportsman in a game which, because of the evils he condemns, is rapidly losing the slightest ideals of sportsmanship. Other coaches, not so great, would do well to follow in his footsteps, particularly in the matter of offering financial inducements to prospective athletes.

In the end, whatever temporary advantage may have been gained will have been completely nullified because inevitably, whenever commercialization enters sport, great abuses rise up and destroy it as a sport.

JUST ANOTHER REAL ESTATE BOOM!

Skyline advertising is about the most conspicuous form of advertising modern business has devised. Not content with setting up billboards, the enthusiasts have harnessed nature wherever possible in an attempt to attract the eyes of the public.

On the slopes of several of the hills behind the College huge letter M's can be seen. To one who is connected with the College the explanation is easy, but to one who is not connected with the history of the College the M's might mean Moraga. Naturally, such persons would consider said letters as indications of skyline advertising for the town of Moraga. Which situation brings us to a very important matter.

If the students wish to choose an emblem let them select something that definitely suggests their meaning. The wearing of a block M is an honor; the erection of an M on the hills of Moraga is also an honor. But we feel that the erection of an M on a hillside near the College is misleading to the public. Some loyal sons no doubt will say that the M is sacred to every Saint Mary's man, and if outsiders do not grasp the meaning, "it's just too bad." This very attitude has taken root in the hearts of too many persons connected with Saint Mary's.

An S M placed on one of the many hills behind the College would be self-explanatory, and further, it would aid in a small way in doing away with a part of that provincialism that is tending to thwart the advance of the College.

Plans are being made by Washington State College to erect a field house at a cost of approximately $100,000. The floor will be of dirt and will be large enough to house a one-eighth mile running track. The building can be used for football and track the year around. The site chosen is adjoining the new gymnasium, and the architecture will be of a style to harmonize wit hthe gymnasium.

Princeton

Coach Bill Roper of Princeton is leading a campaign to end cigarette companies advertising their brands through recommendations from football players and coaches. In a letter to football coaches, he states: "I believe cigarette smoking distinctly harmful to any boy or girl under 21 years of age. No one on my football squad is permitted to touch a cigarette during the season."

French classes at McGill may soon be raided and padlocked with the other low dives. In search of livelier meetings the students have announced that they have opened a cabaret to be called "Le Rat Mort," which promises in time to have an unsavory reputation.

Entertainers, speaking French, occupy the center of the floor, while other club members and guests sit in ringside seats.

The Chaplain's Corner

By Father Bowling, C. S. P.

Why Is It?

Why is it that the Catholic Church holds its people so well? It does very little advertising. Its services are not sensational. Its sermons are rarely of the ear-tickling variety. In fact, it seems to make no effort or appeal for popularity. And yet, you will see crowds pouring out of Catholic Churches Sunday after Sunday at every Mass. What is the secret?

This question is constantly asked by those outside of the Church, and many explanations have been offered. But only one really satisfies—the true answer. The secret is very simple. It is because Catholics believe that Our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, is really and truly present in the Blessed Sacrament under the appearance of bread. And since we believe that Christ is present in our churches, we come to Him just as the people came to Him of old.

He Said So!

Why do we believe this? How can we believe this? Simply and solely because Christ Himself said so. We believe that Jesus was truthful; that He meant what He said when He promised the Apostles to give them His Flesh to eat as the living Bread which came down from Heaven. (See the sixth chapter of St. John.) Moreover, we believe that He kept His word, meant what He said, and fulfilled His promise at the Last Supper when He took bread, blest, and broke and gave to His Apostles saying: Take ye and eat, THIS IS MY BODY. And then the chalice of wine, saying: Drink ye all of this. THIS IS MY BLOOD OF THE NEW AND ETERNAL TESTAMENT. (See St. Matthew, Chapter 26.)

The Best Judges

But could Christ have really meant that! It seems so hard to believe. Do you know that is exactly what some of those who first heard Christ said, so they walked away. And Christ let them go, and turned sadly to the Apostles and asked: will you also go away? And the answer came back straight and clear: Lord to whom else shall we go, Thou hast the words of eternal life! Yes, the Apostles who heard Christ believed. St. Paul believed. The early Christians, Ignatius of Antioch in the second century, Irenaeous and Justtin Martyr in the third and second century—to mention only a few of many—all state clearly the same teaching. In fact—and this will surprise many—THE WHOLE CHRISTIAN CHURCH BELIEVED THE CATHOLIC DOCTRINE OF THE REAL PRESENCE OF CHRIST IN THE BLESSED SACRAMENT UNTIL THE RISE OF PROTESTANTISM IN THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY. Now, who are the best judges of what Christ meant, those who lived in His own day, or those who lived 1600 years later?

Why Did He Say It?

A mother was once reading to her little girl the Bible story of the Last Supper. After reading how Jesus said: THIS IS MY BODY, the mother noticed the look of reverence on the child's face, and hastened to explain: You know, dear Jesus didn't mean that it was really His Body; He meant it was only the appearance of His Body. The child said nothing, but for years afterwards the thought kept coming to her: Why did He say it then, if He didn't mean it? Years later she found that there was one Church that teaches that Jesus meant just what He said, and dwells always in the Blessed Sacrament for the consolation and strength of His children. And from that day, the little girl was happy.
